NTS Map Sheet “82 J/8 – Stimson Creek”

Skrine Creek
(creek)

Located in:

SW ¼, Sec. 20, Twp. 15, Rge. 1, West of 5th Meridian to SE ¼, Sec. 8, Twp. 16, Rge. 1, West of the 5th Meridian (50° 16' 56" N & 114° 5' 57" W to 50° 19' 37" N & 114° 6' 18" W)

This name commemorates Walter and Nesta Skrine (pronounced screen), early operators of a mid-sized ranch on the land the creek flows through. Walter Skrine, of Somerset, England, established the Bar S Ranch on Mosquito Creek in 1887. He chose the site due to the protection offered by the surrounding hills and the plentiful water provided by the regions creeks and springs. He settled first as a squatter and later filed on a 160-acre homestead. In 1895, he married Agnes "Nesta" Shakespeare Higgins, of County Antrim, Ireland. Together the Skrines managed the Bar S Ranch, maintaining up to 700 head of cattle on their homestead and nearly 16,000 acres of leased land. This creek was an important water source for the ranch. Nesta was a published author and poet in Europe under the pseudonym Moira O'Neill and the landscape around the ranch provided inspiration for her poems and prose. In 1902, the Skrines sold the Bar S to a neighbour and moved back to Ireland. The Bar S ranch continues in operation as of 2011.

Bill Griffiths Creek
(creek)

Located in:

SW ¼, Sec. 27, Twp. 24, Rge. 10, West of 5th Meridian to SE ¼, Sec. 23, Twp. 24, Rge. 10, West of the 5th Meridian (51° 4' 20" N & 115° 20' 0" W to 51° 3' 30" N & 115° 17' 30" W)

This name commemorates William “Bill” Griffiths. Griffiths was a fisheries biologist, who worked for Alberta Fish and Wildlife briefly in 1976 and again from 1979 to 1983 (as the Regional Fisheries Biologist in Calgary). In this position he initiated new fisheries management strategies and regulations aimed at enhancing the Bow River's trout fishery. In 1985, he returned to Fish and Wildlife where he coordinated volunteer efforts in fisheries habitat enhancement programs. In 1987, Bill Griffiths worked with the Sarcee Fish and Game Club to undertake a fishery enhancement project in Gap Lake and with the Upper Bow Valley Fish and Game Club to complete a fisheries habitat enhancement project on this creek near Canmore, which is considered to be one of the most important spawning areas for brown trout in the Bow River watershed. Due largely to his efforts the Bow River has become recognized as a world-class trout fishery by scientists, writers and anglers. The name Bill Griffiths Creek is applied to this creek near Canmore to commemorate his commitment to the development of the trout fishery in the Bow River and his connection to this creek, which has become the subject of many studies and reports. The name has been widely used locally since the late-1980s.

Notice of Intent to Designate a Provincial Historic Resource (Historical Resources Act)

File: Des. 1770

Notice is hereby given that sixty days from the date of service of this Notice and its publication in Alberta Gazette, the Minister of Culture and Community Spirit intends to make an Order that the site known as the:

Lacombe Blacksmith Shop, together with the land legally described as:

Plan RN1 (I)
Block 3
Lot 16
excepting thereout all mines and minerals and municipally located at 5020 – 49th Street in Lacombe, Alberta be designated as a Provincial Historic Resource under section 20 of the Historical Resources Act, RSA 2000 cH-9.

The reasons for the designation are as follows: The heritage value of the Lacombe Blacksmith Shop lies in its representation of early twentieth century industrial development in small town Alberta. Blacksmithing was an essential trade during the settlement period, and blacksmith shops were an important industry in small towns.

During the settlement period, towns served as centralized distribution points where the people of the surrounding district could obtain goods and services essential to their livelihoods, health and well-being. To be viable, towns needed to offer a range of services, including trades and small industries, such as small manufactories, livery stables and blacksmith shops, to its hinterland population. Blacksmith shops were usually amongst the first businesses to establish themselves at town sites and at important junctions. From these shops farmers could have necessary metal implements made and repaired, obtain the services of a farrier and, in many instances, access some form of rudimentary veterinary assistance. These functions were all vitally important to early settlers who were located in relatively isolated regions and depended on animals, particularly horses, for transportation and economic well-being. Towns and other rural communities that boasted blacksmith shops and other light industrial services were well positioned for further development. Communities that did not provide these essential services lost visitors to neighbouring communities that could provide them. Despite their importance, these industrial operations were perceived by many as being fire risks and unattractive and they were typically located apart from the main commercial district. Blacksmith shops often became the nucleus of small industrial areas that were out of sight from most visitors, but still close enough to the main street to be convenient for those that required their services.

The Town of Lacombe grew around a Calgary & Edmonton Railway siding established in 1891. The community grew rapidly and by the turn of the century, distinct zones had begun to develop and an industrial area was established on Glass Street (now 49th Street). This street, which ran north from the main commercial block, was home to a livery stable, a hardware supply store, and a laundry. Between 1900 and 1905, these businesses were joined by this blacksmith shop, Lacombe's third. The shop is a simple, highly utilitarian wood-frame structure with a gable roof and a large boomtown front. The building's exterior, which is devoid of ornamentation, is clad in corrugated metal sheets, likely as a fire-prevention measure, and has minimal fenestration. The gable roof, which is supported by two posts, encloses a large open work area. While the exterior is simple, the blacksmith shop's interior is much more complex. Like most blacksmith shops, its work floor is divided into separate areas for general metal-working and horseshoeing. The shop's original forge is still present, as well as a large and small triphammer and many original vices, hammers, blocks, dies, anvils and various other tools, machinery and smithing and horseshoeing equipment. Its wooden walls and ceiling beams, most of which are blackened from years of exposure to soot and heat, also feature countless hooks, rings and rails for tools, securing horses and storage of metal. Branding marks and the carved initials of previous blacksmiths and customers also adorn the walls. Work tables and cabinetry, many with handwritten content labels are located around the work floor. Early in its history, the building went through a rapid succession of owners, but it was in continual use as a blacksmith shop until at least 1939, after which time it saw use as a welding shop and for general metal working trades until 1993.

It is therefore considered that the preservation and protection of the resource is in the public interest.

Dated this 24th day of March, A.D. 2011.

Heritage Division
