(50° 36' 37" N & 114° 58' 34" W to 50° 35' 08" N & 114° 58' 18" W)
Approximately 55 km south-west of Turner Valley.

This name commemorates Thomas W. Trotter (1904-1993). Tom Trotter was born in Aylmer, Ontario and came with his family to Alberta in 1905. He was a pioneer in Alberta's oil industry, working as a laboratory researcher and production foreman at Turner Valley and he made significant contributions to the province's oil and natural gas sector. He was also an avid outdoorsman, a skilled horseman, big game hunter and fisherman and spent considerable time in the Highwood Pass region. He was known for his advocacy for sound management practices and conservation of the province's natural environment, particularly that of the region now known as Kananaskis Country. The name was proposed by the Kananaskis Country naming officer. The creek flows off the west face of Mount Arethusa and progresses south-easterly for approximately 3.25 km before entering Storm Creek.

(54° 28' 03" N & 115° 51' 23" W to 54° 21' 37" N & 115° 55' 53" W)

Approximately 28 km north-west of Whitecourt.

From its point of origin, this creek flows for approximately 16.5 km in a generally south-westerly direction until it enters the Sakwatamau River approximately 28 km north-west of the Town of Whitecourt. In 1998, an application was received requesting that the creek be officially named to aid in navigation and mapping in the region. Field research found that the creek was known as Grizzly Creek by the local population. The name is a reference to the grizzly bear (Ursus arctos horribilis) and likely refers to historic sightings of grizzly bears along the course of the water feature.

Notice of Intent to Designate a Provincial Historic Resource (Historical Resources Act)

File: Des. 424

Notice is hereby given that sixty days from the date of service of this Notice and its publication in Alberta Gazette, the Minister of Culture and Community Services intends to make an Order that the site known as the:

St. Jean Baptiste Church and Rectory, together with the land legally described as:

All that portion of the north west quarter of section twenty seven (27) township seventy seven (77) range twenty one (21) west of the fifth meridian, described as follows: Commencing at the south west corner of the said quarter section thence east along the south boundary fifty five (55) meters, thence north and parallel to the west boundary two hundred twenty two (222) meters thence west and parallel to the south boundary to intersection with the west boundary, thence south along the west boundary to point of commencement, containing 1.221 hectares (3.02 acres) more or less.

Excepting thereout all mines and minerals and municipally located in the Municipal District of Smoky River No. 130, Alberta be designated as a Provincial Historic Resource under section 20 of the Historical Resources Act, RSA 2000 cH-9.

The reasons for the designation are as follows: The heritage value of St. Jean Baptiste Church and Rectory lies in its association with the attempts by Roman Catholic clergy to create a Franco-Catholic enclave in northern Alberta. It also possesses heritage value for its rarity as a two and one half-storey log building serving the dual purposes of church and residence.

In 1909, the Dominion government established a land office at Grouard and began to subdivide the vast lands of the Peace River country into townships. Bishop Emile Grouard perceived the opening of the region for settlement as an opportunity to establish a robust francophone Catholic presence in northern Alberta. Grouard appointed Fr. Jean-Baptiste Giroux to act as a special colonization agent for the project on behalf of the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate and dispatched his charge to spread the Good News of the Peace Country in the winter of 1911 and 1912 to francophone communities in Quebec, New England, and Minnesota. Some 35 families responded to the call and were shepherded to their new home by Fr. Giroux and his assistant, Fr. Constant Falher. The settlers formed the nucleus of the district of Donnelly-Falher situated between Lake Kimiwan and the Smoky River. By 1914, the region's population had grown to almost 300 people, the overwhelmingly majority of whom were francophone and Catholic. Father Marie Dreau was the first resident priest to serve the community. In 1914, Br. Augustin Dumas, designer and builder of the St. Bernard Church in Grouard, supervised a host of volunteers who erected a two-storey log building to function as both St. Jean Baptiste church and a rectory for Fr. Dreau. With a new influx of francophone settlement in the district following the arrival of the Edmonton Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway in 1915, the church population continued to grow. By 1919, a new church had been constructed to accommodate the growing population and St. Jean Baptiste Church and Rectory was adapted for use as a private residence.

St. Jean Baptiste Church and Rectory embodies a rare marriage of substantial log construction with dual functionality. There are few log churches still extant in Alberta and those that remain are typically simple, single storey buildings. Even fewer in number are log buildings that served as religious housing. With its two and one half storeys and full dovetail notching, the church represents a scale and craftsmanship uncommon among log churches. Its added distinction as an early and rare combined priest's residence and place of worship marks the St. Jean Baptiste Church and Rectory as a rare and significant building.

It is therefore considered that the preservation and protection of the resource is in the public interest.

Notice is hereby given that sixty days from the date of service of this Notice and its publication in Alberta Gazette, the Minister of Culture and Community Services intends to make an Order that the site known as the:

Canadian Bank of Commerce Manager's Residence, together with the land legally described as:

Plan 2325P Block 14 the south west half of Lot 9 and all of Lot 10
Excepting thereout all mines and minerals and municipally located at 2419 – 20th Street in Nanton, Alberta be designated as a Provincial Historic Resource under section 20 of the Historical Resources Act, RSA 2000 cH-9.

The reasons for the designation are as follows: The heritage value of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Bank Manager's Residence lies in it being an excellent example of a Craftsman style home. This style was a popular for middle- and professional-class residences in the pre-World War I period.

As a service centre for the region's ranching and farming sectors, the community of Nanton attracted many businesses and services. In 1904, the Bank of Commerce established a branch in Nanton. In December 1906, C. F. A. Gregory, of Barrie, Ontario, became the manager of the Nanton branch. In 1909, he had an impressive Craftsman style home built in town. When Gregory was transferred to Winnipeg in 1911, the house was sold to the bank, which used it as a manager's residence until the mid-1970s.

The Craftsman style became popular in the United States around the turn of the twentieth-century. Like the larger Arts and Crafts movement, the Craftsman style was a reaction to the increasing industrialization and mechanization of society. The style was popularized by American designer and furniture manufacturer Gustav Stickley in his publication The Craftsman, in which he lauded the Arts and Crafts movement and extolled the virtues of natural materials and the benefits of craft-labour over the efficiencies of machinery and mass produced products. Craftsman style homes contained copious quantities of interior woodwork, such as exposed ceiling beams and high quality millwork; custom-fit, built-in shelving and cabinetry; built-in seating, often with under seat storage, stone or petrified wood fireplaces; stone foundations; variegated exterior finishing; and exposed eaves and rafter ends. The Arts and Crafts style was also influenced by Oriental design styles and ethos. Similarly, many Craftsman bungalows had a Japanese aesthetic, which was communicated through low-slung roofs, an overall horizontal orientation, pergolas and stylized balcony pillars and rafter ends. The Craftsman style melded well with the bungalow design, which emphasized domesticity, family-life and harmony. Bungalows tended to be modest in size and usually featured open-floor plans with wide archways between rooms; large sitting rooms with fireplaces; a clear demarcation between public and private space, large verandas, and occasionally developed half-storeys.

The Bank Manager's Residence communicates many Craftsman values and motifs. There is a high emphasis on natural materials, and craftsmanship, from the sandstone foundation, fieldstone veranda pilings and chimney to the interior wood work, such as the baseboards, wainscoting, window and door frames and wood strip floor. Entry to the house is through a wide wooden door with a lattice paned window, flanked by four-over-one paned windows. The interior features an open floor plan with wide, wood-trimmed archways, some with sliding pocket doors, defining the living room, dining room and study, and a usable upper half-storey. High quality, built in cabinetry and shelving, most with latticed glass doors, are present in the living room and dining room and the living room features a large fireplace. From the street, the residence's gently-sloped gable roof and the horizontal orientation of the front veranda, decorative beams and wide, shed-roofed dormer window, give the one and one-half-storey residence a low profile. The house also communicates a Japanese aesthetic through its tapered veranda pillars, which are echoed in the fenestration trim; the stylized design of the exposed eaves, rafter and beam ends and veranda brackets; the low-sloping, shed roofs on the dormer and side windows; the slight curvature of the main roof edge; and the use of lattices in the windows and the veranda railings. Altogether, these elements effectively set the house as being an excellent example of the Craftsman style.

It is therefore considered that the preservation and protection of the resource is in the public interest.
