Culture and Tourism

Notice of Intention to Designate a Provincial Historic Resource

(Historical Resources Act)

File: Des. 2297

Notice is hereby given that sixty days from the date of service of this Notice and its publication in Alberta Gazette, the Minister of Culture and Tourism intends to make an Order that the site known as the:

Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company Brewery, together with the land legally described as:

Plan 142 5753
Block 21
Lot 2
Area 'A' and Area 'B'
Excepting Thereout All Mines and Minerals and municipally located in the City of Edmonton, Alberta be designated as a Provincial Historic Resource under Section 20 of the Historical Resources Act, RSA 2000 cH-9.

The reasons for the designation are as follows: The Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company Brewery is significant as an industrial site; for its association with the brewing industry; for its functional, yet artistic design and style; and for its association with architect Bernard Barthel.

Located in a former industrial area west of Edmonton's downtown, the Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company Brewery was a significant, early industrial site. It was ideally located adjacent to railways and a major roadway, allowing for efficient shipping and receiving, and the near residential neighbourhoods and historic streetcar lines, providing a near-to-hand workforce. The presence of the small, more subdued administration building, distinguishable both physically and stylistically from the main brewery structure, demonstrates the trend to separate administrative and manufacturing functions in early twentieth-century industrial sites.

Built by the Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company to replace their smaller brewery in Rosedale the facility went through numerous owners, ending its active days under the banner of Molson Canada. Through extant Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company signage and a tile mosaic of a Molson logo on the exterior, the brewery provides structural evidence of the evolution of Alberta's brewing industry from a local or regional enterprise to a nationally oriented business.

The site's function as a brewery is also evident in its combination of practical design with fanciful Revivalist styling. The brewery's function, the efficient production of mass quantities of beer for sale across the province, is expressed through its general factory-like appearance, its substantial scale, wide entries, and large, multi-paned factory-style windows and the variable interior floor plates, which were set to accommodate brewery functions and processes. The site also exhibits classical revival elements popular on many industrial buildings of its period. These elements include brick pilasters, window arches, dentils and modillions and are found throughout the brewery, but particularly on the more subtle office building. The main brewery building, particularly the tower, is enhanced by a different stylistic flare. Architectural details, such as simulated battlements and turrets, a barbican or gatehouse as well as the numerous semi-circular arches over entries and windows, combined with the monumental massing and vertical orientation of the brewery, effectively communicate a medieval, Germanic or Bavarian, castle-like aesthetic common to many North American breweries of the period.

The brewery's combination of practical design with artistic styling is a hallmark of its Chicago-based architect, Bernard Barthel. Specializing in industrial buildings, particularly breweries, Barthel's designs deliberately belie their practical and functional purpose through the use of elegant, if rather fanciful Revivalist details. Likely inspired by the strong Germanic brewing tradition of the United States and the popularity of Germanic architectural motifs in earlier and contemporaneous American breweries, such as the Anheuser-Busch brewery in St. Louis and the Pabst Brewery in Milwaukee, as well as his upbringing and training in his native Germany, Barthel's breweries exhibit an appearance described as "castle-like" or "feudalistic." Barthel designed industrial facilities and breweries across North America. However, little remains of his work and the Edmonton Brewing and Malting Company Brewery, which bears a striking resemblance to his Schmidt Brewery in St. Paul, MN, is an excellent example of his style.

It is therefore considered that the preservation and protection of the resource is in the public interest.

Dated this 31st day of August, A.D. 2015.

Heritage Division
